Railway Shop Wages Cut Seven Cents, Freight Car Men Nine by Labor Board

Order Is Made Over Strong Protest by Labor Representatives.

SAVES ROADS $59,660,000

No Consideration for Human Needs in Majority Report, Charge Made by the Minority Members; 400,000 Employees Are Affected by the Decision.

By Associated Press.
CHICAGO, June 6.—Over the strong protest of the three labor representatives on the United States Railroad Labor Board a new wage cut of seven cents an hour for railway shop mechanics and nine cents for freight car men, cutting 400,000 shopmen $4,000,000 a year was ordered by the board today.

The wage reduction brought an estimated additional saving of $59,660,000 annually to the railroads following on the heels of a $50,000,000 cut in the wages of maintenance of way laborers last week.

The shop craft section became effective July 1, the same date as last week's order.

The minority report of the labor members stated that the majority decision was made "with no consideration of human needs" and charges that it fails to carry out the function of the board to set a just and reasonable wage.

Supervisor forces of the railway men were not decreased. After due consideration, the decision said, it is felt that the duties and responsibilities of such forces warranted maintenance of the present rates.

The reductions for mechanics have averaged a little more than eight per cent, all machinists, boilermakers, locksmiths, sheet metal workers, electrical workers, car men except eight car men, machinists, cupola founders and core makers and the regular and helper apprentices receiving cut of seven cents an hour. Freight car men, commonly known as knockers, and the object of some of the easiest assaults on the roads in their battle for lower wages, were cut nine cents.

The latest decision, which is to be shortly followed by reductions for coke, tapers, and other classes of railway employees, except the train service men, was brief and offered no explanation of how the rates were arrived at.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—H. L. Robinson, representative in Washington of the International Association of Machinists declared today a strike would immediately be taken among the 400,000 machinists affected by the decision of the Railroad Labor Board reducing wages. He said association officials considered the decision unjustifiable.

CINCINNATI, June 6.—New wage reductions for shop men ordered by a Railroad Labor Board today can intensify the present feeling of dissatisfaction with railway labor conditions and will at least result in an immediate strike vote returnable in 30 days according to B. M. Jewell, head of the shop craft unions, here today for a railroad strike conference.

CINCINNATI, June 6.—Representatives of all the railroad labor organizations with the exception of the Big Four brotherhoods were here today to attend the opening of conferences during which recent rulings of the United States Labor Board, reducing wages of all rail workers, will be discussed. It was declared all rumors concerning a railroad strike at this time were speculative as only the several organizations can take strike votes.

Landenberger to inquire into the propriety of changing a part of the boundary line of Wharton and Stewart townships so as to annex a small strip to Stewart township for school purposes. The petition sets forth that the community is without the proper school facilities and that if a certain number of families of the same community were in the same township they would be benefited by the erection of a school house.

SOFT COAL PRICE WILL BE INCREASED, HOOVER IS TOLD

Fixing of Maximum at $3.50 Ton by Federal Approval Cause, Retailers Say.

Commerce Secretary Declares He "Simply Cannot Stand" For Retailers Blaming Increases Fixed at Conferences With Operators at Capitol.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Retail coal prices will rise as much as $1.75 a ton because of the advance in the price of coal at the mines under the agreements reached last week with operators in the producing fields. Secretary Hoover was informed Monday by Frederick Stephens of New York chairman of the board of directors of the National Retail Coal Merchant Association.

Mr. Hoover met with about 40 members of the Association to discuss the cooperation of shippers in the Commerce Department's effort to prevent runaway coal prices during the strike. The voluntary cooperation of the association to prevent unreasonably high prices was pledged by Mr. Stephens.

Establishment of a maximum of $3.50 a ton for coal at the mines, Mr. Stephens contended, would mean an increase of $1.75 a ton in the retail price in Maine and the Northwest. An immediate advance should be expected in New York and Ontario.

The necessity for advancing retail prices, he said, was due to the price fixed by the operators and the long transportation necessary from most points.

Mr. Hoover declared that he "simply could not stand" for retailers blaming the increases on the fair price fixed by the operators of coal miners that the wholesale price of coal has been reduced and that those who had cost under contract were under a moral obligation to pass the benefit of the fair price on to the public.

The association announced later that complying with Mr. Hoover's request that a member be designated to represent the association that had selected Joseph E. O. Tuohy, secretary of the association, for this position.

Daughter Elmer Miller Urges Governor Not to Prevent Father Going to Chair

HARRISBURG, June 6.—A case paralleling the Donovan incident in Indiana in which William A. Donovan was refused a pardon and executed for murder last week because his 17-year-old daughter, Mabel, wrote to the Indiana governor and pleaded that her father not be spared, seems to be developing in Pennsylvania.

Governor Sproul yesterday received the same sort of request from Mrs. John Livingston of Vanderlit, Fayette county, who urges the Pennsylvania executive that he do nothing to prevent her father, Elmer Miller, from going to the electric chair.

The arrests were made by Assistant Chief P. M. Kull on information of William Martay. The informant believed the men were firing the revolver at him, although this is denied by the men. Mayo owned the gun but said his companion had fired it. Raymond was also charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. TUESDAY EVENING, JUNE 6, 1922.

A FAIR MAXIMUM COAL PRICE.

In deciding to cooperate in the movement to prevent an inflation of coal prices during the strike the independent producers of the Connellsville region have very wisely fallen in line with the operators of other districts.

None realize better than coal producers and legitimate dealers the dangers in a runaway market. With buyers bidding excitedly against each other inexperienced and irresponsible persons set themselves up as coal brokers, the trade is over-stimulated and damage done which requires a long period of normal conditions to repair. Public sentiment is aroused and the whole coal industry is condemned because of the indiscretions and greed of that class of dealers who get into the business to make a "killing" within a short space of time.

With the mutual understanding and agreement now being reached in the trade, such as is resulting from the restraint being placed on prices under Secretary Hoover's plan there are assurances that the evils of a price boom can be avoided. The arrangement being entirely voluntary there is no means of enforcing it other than the respect men have for their pledged word.

The precautions being taken in the public interest, and for the future benefit of the industry, sentiment in the trade will no doubt be sufficiently strong to prevent producers or dealers breaking faith. If they do, they will justly deserve to be regarded as outside the pale of association with reputable producers and dealers.

While there is general acquiescence in the view that in deciding to go along on the price proposition the Connellsville region operators have shown their willingness to forego any temporary advantage they might obtain in a wide-open market, there are some differences of opinion as to the discretion shown in suggesting $4.50 as the fair price maximum.

For special uses the high grade of Connellsville coal very naturally entitles it to a premium over the product of other fields supplying the same markets. That argument alone would doubtless be very much better made to the point and less liable to invite criticism than the point being incurred in employing mine guards should be absorbed by making the fair maximum price $1.00 a ton higher than has been suggested in neighboring districts.

Some of these districts could very properly advance the same contention, they being subject to similar strike conditions. If the argument of the Connellsville producers is allowed to stand, and their suggestion of $1.50 is accepted, other districts might possibly urge that they, too, be accorded the same privilege. There is, therefore, some likelihood that Secretary Hoover will not be in entire accord with the $1.00 premium on Connellsville coal.

The local operators deserve to have such market advantages as will enable them to recoup the losses of a long lean period but it would perhaps be safer to exercise the virtue of patience until the dangers peculiar to the present situation shall have passed, trusting to the after the strike demand to establish price levels which will compensate for the restraints now being imposed in the best interests of the industry.

PREVENTING STREET DAMAGE.

Superintendent Berg, of the department of streets, was very much on his job when he prevented a heavy tractor being driven over the recently re-surfaced streets. The damage done on the Mount Pleasant road by a vehicle of this type was so serious that Mr. Berg was entirely unwilling that the city streets be injured in a like manner. Protection of the streets not the legal rights of the owners of heavy motor driven machines is the question. Mr. Berg was interested in it.

It would seem like a hardship to deny the use of the highways to any particular class of vehicles but the rights of the largest traveling public should be given preference if any distinctions are to be drawn. The common sense view is that no person should be allowed to propel any vehicle over a highway of such weight or character as would destroy the roadbed or make its use by other vehicles inconvenient or dangerous.

The exercise of privileges on the highways does not comprehend liberty to impinge the rights of other travelers. Protection of the roadway is plainly one of the rights to which users of it are entitled.

It is a trifle singular that the Democratic newspapers are so much concerned about the election of a Republican State Chairman but apparently oblivious to the fact that Judge Eugene C Bonnwell the stalwart of "We" record and proclivities has things all set up to become successor to Chairman Sterling, "handpicked-in-chief."

When considering the fair maximum price for Connellsville coal Secretary Hoover may have a suggestion of his own to offer.

Henry Ford says he is willing to be a candidate for President, but will not spend any money on a campaign. Evidently he has a distinct conception of the cost of his attempt to "elbow into the United States Senate."

Memorial Day for Lynch Victims

From The (Colored) Advocate

Shall Memorial Day mean anything to the Negro, waiting patiently for the Senate to pass the Dyer Bill, which will, at least let the world know that Congress disapproves of lynching, burning, torturing boys and women? Shall Memorial Day mean only tears and sorrow, or shall it mean a rift in the darkness which envelops the unfortunate who comprise the oppressed of our nation?

Within a week lynchings burnings hideous beatings to the number of seven have occurred, even a white man a minister of the Gospel was included in the orgy. A 16-year-old boy a owl rooster while his tortured cries the pitiful pleading of a child fall on ears not deaf, but delighted with his agony. Meanwhile the Senate maintains its passivity.

It is not necessary to commit rape in order to be lynched one need only speak sharply or look as if one would like to speak sharply to a white man and the rope the fagot the brush pile, the pistol, await the hapless victim. He may even be dragged over rocks at the tail of an automobile for a novelty. Turkey laughs in her sleeve, and Soviet Russia chuckles grimly as her crimes are recited against her by the actions of Europe. The Communists of Paris begins to look like a piker besides this land of the free and home of the brave, and the Spanish Inquisition will have to look to its laurels it only tried its victims. We roast ours, and take them off the fire so that they can "confess" and implicate others in the manner most approved by the Doges of Venice.

"Memorial Day" Let's have a Memorial Day for our victims of lynchings! Shall we plant wreaths and garlands on the pyres in the fair Southland, where frantic mobs fight for souvenirs of crisp toes and charred ears? Shall we recite the brave deeds of our soldiers who have saved the nation time and again to our little one; while the superior white race rats prattling childhood on high so that it can see the brave sight of other children burned alive? Or shall we memorialize against our own Senate wrestling bravely with five per cent ad valorem?

And afar off we hear the faint, but none the less distinct murmurings of a patient race unable to hit back because of its censured position unable to burn, stay, murder in reprisal, but patiently, oh so patiently sharpening its one defense left the one little potent weapon—the ballot for the elections in November 1922.

The resignation of Lloyd Shaw as fire truck driver was read and accepted to take effect July 1 or sooner.

The matter of leasing on Braddock corner, Main and Church streets, was discussed and the burgess was asked to have the police keep this corner free of loafers.

Section three of the automobile ordinance was repealed, making it permissible for the driver of any vehicle to back onto any alley or street along Main street.

The water company was authorized to remove the watering troughs from Main street.

The collector reported that he had $700.42 of the paving and sewer fund to turn over to the secretary.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Health Is Worth Saving, and Some Connellsville People Know How to Save It.

Many Connellsville people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Weak kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health—the slightest delay is dangerous. Use Dean's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has helped thousands of kidney sufferers. Ask your neighbor, here is a Connellsville citizen's recommendation.

Mrs. Jno. Morrison, 109 W. Morton Ave., says: "Within the past three years I used Dean's Kidney Pills for an attack of backache and other symptoms of kidney disorder. I was bothered a great deal with pains across my kidneys and lame ness and soreness through them. In the morning my back was always stiff and my kidneys annoyed me by acting irascibly. I was troubled this way for some time when a neighbor recommended Dean's Kidney Pills to me. Two boxes from Keagy's Drug Store entirely rid me of the trouble and I have never had a return of it."

GIRL NOW WELL AND STRONG

Daughter Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as Mother Advised

Wauseon, Ohio.—"My daughter always had backache and leg-ache at certain periods and could not be on her feet at those times. We read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound doing girls so much good and she began to take it. That is two years ago and she is a different girl since than able to do any work she wants to do—although she is still careful not to do heavy work—and so well and strong. We recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all mothers with ailing daughters, and I give you permission to publish this letter as a testimonial." —Mrs. A. M. Burkholder, Route No. 2, Box 1, Wauseon, Ohio.

Something out of balance will affect the finest clock, causing it to gain or lose. The proper adjustment made, all is well. So it is with women. Some trouble may upset you completely.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will correct the cause of the trouble and disagreeable symptoms will disappear as they did in the case of Mrs. Burkholder's daughter.

MOTHERS—it is worthy of your confidence.

Benevolent Game Will Be Staged for Injured Player Tomorrow Evening.

Pritchard in Glory

The Baltimore & Ohio baseball team boosted its standing at the expense of the Fayette Bakers yesterday evening at Fayette Field, winning by a score of 5-0.

The contest lasted only five innings, and two of these were played in the rain. The railroaders scored three in the third and two in the fifth.

Tomorrow evening the Juniors and the Lennox Club will clash. Sheila Hauser expects to duplicate her home run shot pulled recently, when she knocked the ball over the fence.

Juniors and West Penn Meet Tomorrow

The baseball team of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics will play the West Penn team in a benefit game at Fayette Field Wednesday evening. The entire proceeds will go to Charles Pless, who had a leg fractured while sliding into third base during a recent City League game.

The two teams are among the best in the League and a cracker-jack ball game is anticipated.

Crowds at these contests are increasing as the games become better.

The Torrino Juniors defeated the Coalbrook team in a game at Popular Grove last evening. The game went for four innings and the score was 3-0. The batteries were: Torrino Juniors, Giles and Miller; Coalbrook, Williams and Brooks.

Only one game of major league baseball was played yesterday, that at Boston, when the home aggregation shut out St. Louis, 6-0 and set the Cardinals back somewhat in their chase after Pittsburgh and New York. The Buc-Philly clash started bad for the Pirates, the Quakers scoring two in the first inning, but the Pittsburgh batters tied things up before the rain caused a halt in the program.

Ted Pritchard, on the mound for Bethany College, playing against Wesleyan, yesterday pitched a no-hitter in a game at Buckhannon, W. Va. The team won 4-0. Pritchard is a Lauder Township southpaw.

Johnny King of Fayette City will meet Frank McNichols of Pittsburgh in the semi-final of the Ryan-Corbett fight at Forbes Field next Monday night. It will be the first appearance of King in the Smoky City.

Bob Martin, heavyweight champion of the A. E. F., last night knocked out Joe Burke of Cleveland in the first round of a fight at Columbus, O. It was a quick finish for the man who battered Martin so badly in a recent scrap at Akron.

Juniors and West Penn Meet Tomorrow

The baseball team of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics will play the West Penn team in a benefit game at Fayette Field Wednesday evening. The entire proceeds will go to Charles Pless, who had a leg fractured while sliding into third base during a recent City League game.

The two teams are among the best in the League and a cracker-jack ball game is anticipated.

Crowds at these contests are increasing as the games become better.

The Torrino Juniors defeated the Coalbrook team in a game at Popular Grove last evening. The game went for four innings and the score was 3-0. The batteries were: Torrino Juniors, Giles and Miller; Coalbrook, Williams and Brooks.

Only one game of major league baseball was played yesterday, that at Boston, when the home aggregation shut out St. Louis, 6-0 and set the Cardinals back somewhat in their chase after Pittsburgh and New York. The Buc-Philly clash started bad for the Pirates, the Quakers scoring two in the first inning, but the Pittsburgh batters tied things up before the rain caused a halt in the program.

Ted Pritchard, on the mound for Bethany College, playing against Wesleyan, yesterday pitched a no-hitter in a game at Buckhannon, W. Va. The team won 4-0. Pritchard is a Lauder Township southpaw.

Johnny King of Fayette City will meet Frank McNichols of Pittsburgh in the semi-final of the Ryan-Corbett fight at Forbes Field next Monday night. It will be the first appearance of King in the Smoky City.

Bob Martin, heavyweight champion of the A. E. F., last night knocked out Joe Burke of Cleveland in the first round of a fight at Columbus, O. It was a quick finish for the man who battered Martin so badly in a recent scrap at Akron.

HURDY GURDY FINANCE

"Hey, You, Bill!" Roared Joe Wilks, "Turn Every Sucker Out and Lock the Gates!"

They were passing the merry-go-round, when Houston reported this interesting fact. The little engine was missing, and its shrill whistle was piping, while Mable Houston stood proudly at the lever. The merry-go-round was whirling at top speed, and Joe Wilks sat astride the horse with the green tail.

"Oh, Mr. Ames," cried Mable, in her timid voice, and stopped the engine with a jerk. "No, Joe; you mustn't climb down yet. Mr. Ames and daddy, pick out your horses. Take the pictures, please. I can see you and don't sit close together."

"Mr. Ames is busy," protested her father. "Oh, no he isn't— are you, Mr. Ames?" and her eyes had the softness of a summer evening sky.

"I've been wanting to ride that plink-striped horse ever since I've been here," solemnly declared Ames rather shocked with himself, and swung his long legs astride the wooden beast in question. "Come on Houston. I like that intelligent racer with the freak legs."

"Eet! Eet!" shrieked the sleeky little whistler and they were off, running slowly and smoothly then at furious speed then stopping abruptly, and jerking onward again until John Ames, who had frequently crossed in stormy weather recognized a certain familiar malady in his mouth and felt that he had to look green.

"Oh, I've had a lovely time," said Mable, in a purring tone. "I'm coming out often, may I?" and she took her round, blue eyes to his face.

Chapter V.

There came another day. For the first time in a week, Mable Houston, who had been general nuisance and obstruction, did not come. John Ames, superintending the construction of absurdly childish things for the amusement of grownups, missed the youngster seriously. She had been on every dangerous scaffolding in the park she had dragged Joe Wilks and her father and himself through every uncomfortable experience which an active and ingenious mind could devise. She had brought back to John Ames the spirit of childhood itself, and, now that the day wore on, and she did not come, he found himself more lonely than he could have imagined.

"Where's Mable?" complained Joe Wilks, watching a carpenter nail on the eye of a gigantic dragon. The place looks like a rainy day without her."

"Yes, don't it," agreed John. "She's a most fascinating child."

"Child!" objected Joe. "She's eighteen. She was introduced to society last winter. She'll probably be married this year."

"That was true!" She was eighteen. She was after all, a woman! John Ames went about his work methodically. They were painting green griffins and yellow unicorns, and sad devils all around the park, but John Ames saw nothing but blue eyes.

"Hello, John," cooed a soft little voice.

He jumped as if he had been struck, and turning, looked deep into the eyes which had banished him all day. He clasped her hand, and knew the soft warm throb of it, and in that moment, he believed that his search was over.

Chapter VI.

It was Children's day at Playground park, formerly Joe Wilks'. That paradise of pleasure was to be formally opened on the following day, which was Saturday, but on this occasion there was to be no money taken at the gate.

As early in the day as 10 o'clock, Lemper's famous band came swinging down the re-named Pleasure avenue to the Playground park, followed by an elephant and two camels and a company of police, and the contents of the orphans' home and the city schools, by swarms, platoons and streams and the newsboys with their own band and then just children miles of them!

By this token, the town knew that Playground park had come into exhilarating voice. The blare of the band, mingled with the endless tune of the new carousel and the squeak of horns and the clatter of bells and the roar of whistles and the wailing of youngsters and the chimes of the "barkers" and the rush of the roller coasters, and all other discord which the spirit of carnival evoked formed a harmony celestial to Joe Wilks' ears.

"You win, John!" he exultantly cried for the 20th time since 2 o'clock. "You win it! I walk old pal! You son's money is safe!" He paused still sitting at the gate and picking them out to watch one of the lumpy specials' start into a crowd procure a young man who was fresh and give him a warning with murder behind it. Mable ought to have been out today. Albeit it'soughs here.

You'll be as sensible as I am you handle it this way," promised Ames with a smile.

It was about to have kept Mable away but both her father and he felt so responsible of the child. She was but a child of all. No. She was a woman with all a woman's charm and all a woman's soul and all a woman's capacity for joy and sorrow. She was there today except for her adoring mother alone. Home unhappy bearing in absence the disappointment they had forced on her against her earnest protest. He found blue eyes haunted him and their reproach was even more poignant when Peter G. Houston walked delightedly up to him. Houston's eyes were nothing like Mabel's but they were a piece of the same color.

Stroke of genius! John! he exclaimed. When we get through with this I want to talk to you about other matters in which I'd like to hand you an interest!

"Plenty of time for that," laughed Ames. "This looks pretty good just now. Joe Wilks is happy as a king. He tells me he's going to find a friend and look his part."

"Joe has a right to be happy," on this pointly returned Houston. We all have. Why, John and boy do you know that you and I have options on two hundred thousand dollars worth of property surrounding Playground park, and that it will double in value within the next two years?
